HONGKONG, JUNE 27th, 1877.

It is satisfactory to learn, on the authority of the London and China Express, that the Home Government has under its consideration the suggestion made by the Chamber of Commerce, and which found almost universal favour in this Colony, that a British dollar equal in weight and fineness to the Mexican dollar be minted in England for circulation here, in the Straits, Saigon, the Treaty ports of China, &c. The evils of a devalued and variable currency have so long pressed upon Hongkong, and have given rise to so many inconveniences, and so many disagreements that it is some comfort to hear that the question is over under consideration. The arguments in favour of the stop proposed are so numerous, and indisputable, and obvious, and unimpeachable, that there is some room to hope that the result of the deliberations of the Home Government will be in accordance with the wishes of the British and foreign residents on this point. It matters little whether the dollar is minted in England or India, so long as it is up to the required standard and the supply is constant. If the idea is adopted, however, it will certainly be advisable for the British Minister at Peking to come to an arrangement with the Chinese Government to issue an edict against the devaluation of coins. It is to this effect were stringently enforced, we should then very soon obtain a clean British currency, and get rid of the manifold disadvantages caused by the chopped dollars. The replacement of the Mexican by a British dollar here and in neighbouring countries would, moreover, tend to improve British prestige in China, and remove a long-standing reproach to the Colony. Now that a certain portion of the mercantile community has given in to the threats of the Canton Cotton Guild, and made a recommendation in favour of rounding chopped dollars a legal tender, the coinage of a clean British dollar has become more than ever desirable. We believe there would be very little difficulty either in the Chinese getting rid of their chopped dollars or in the native authorities making them refrain from devaluing the new coins. Nor is there any doubt about the reception a British dollar would meet. It would be welcomed without hesitation in almost any part of the Central Kingdom, as well as here and in the Straits Settlements.

Mr. J. LAWRENCE HAMILTON, whose letter on "Art in Hospitals" appeared in yesterday's issue, is one of those gentlemen with a hobby who are becoming so numerous in these days. Prompted no doubt by the best intentions and a genuine desire to alleviate the lot of those who are compelled to become inmates of hospitals, he nevertheless manages to make his scheme appear ridiculous. The idea in itself is not a bad one, for the hospitals in most of the large towns of the United Kingdom and elsewhere are very dreary and comfortless-looking buildings. The furniture of the wards is usually of the plainest and cheapest character, and the bare, white-washed walls and curtained windows are not inspiring to gaze upon, especially as often happens when a patient has been used to the comforts of a good home. It is rarely indeed, however, that the hospitals or those who support them can afford to supply anything beyond mere necessities to the patients, and hence it is not to be expected that the wards should be otherwise than bleak and desolate looking. If the public choose to come forward and by the exercise of a little liberality, gladden the eyes and cheer the hearts of poor sufferers by decorating the walls of the hospitals with some good steel engravings and a few inexpensive ornaments they will do some real good. Some hospitals are already supplied with pictures and flowers contributed by kind-hearted and unostentatious people. This recovery of patients often depends as to its length or otherwise upon their surroundings; they languish amid gloomy influences and revive under cheering ones. To any scheme having for its object the enlivening of institutions the atmosphere of which must necessarily be depressing, the support of the public will not be wanting. There is much real sympathy with suffering in every British community, and it is never difficult to raise funds to alleviate affliction. But it is a very different thing that Mr. LAWRENCE HAMILTON asks. He wishes apparently to convert the hospitals into museums. He talks about the acquisition of "plate, bronzes, carvings, bric-a-brac, old armour, china, sculpture, ornamental clocks, fancy glass," &c., &c. This is surely most absurd. In the first place, large sums of money would be necessary to carry out such a scheme, and in the second place the money could be much better applied. There are scores and hundreds of patients taken to hospitals both in the United Kingdom and the Colonies whose sickness has been the means of reducing to destitution, and who when they are convalescent but still weak have to go forth penniless to recommence the battle of life. It would be far better to raise a fund out of which a small donation could be given to such patients for their immediate necessities than to fritter away large sums on articles of vertu which would be wholly unappreciated by a very large proportion of those they were intended to delight and instruct. In spite, however, of his liberal subscription it is highly improbable that Mr. LAWRENCE HAMILTON's idea will ever be carried out in its entirety.

The Legislative Council will meet to-morrow afternoon at half-past two o'clock.

Mr. B. Jardine has been unanimously elected a member of the Jockey Club at a meeting held at Newmarket.

The two Chinese gunboats Gemma and Delta, which left Plymouth on the 25th February last for Tientsin, arrived here yesterday. The former is commanded by Commander Lang and Lieutenant Powell, and the latter by Commander Ching and Lieutenant Hatt. They are of equal tonnage, and each carries 38-ton guns in the bow and main battery, and 20-pounder Armstrong guns in the stern. They also carry 38-ton guns in the bow and main battery, and 20-pounder Armstrong guns in the stern. As a consequence, a number of authors have proposed that the use of a single, common, and simple metric for the evaluation of the quality of the results of a simulation study is more appropriate than the use of a number of different metrics. In this paper, we propose the use of the coefficient of variation (CV) as a single metric for the evaluation of the quality of the results of a simulation study. The CV is a measure of the relative variability of a random variable, and it is defined as the ratio of the standard deviation to the mean. The CV is a dimensionless quantity, and it is independent of the units of the random variable. The CV is a useful measure of the quality of the results of a simulation study, because it provides a simple and intuitive way to compare the results of different simulation studies. The CV is also a useful measure of the quality of the results of a simulation study, because it provides a simple and intuitive way to compare the results of different simulation studies.
